HSVMA STUDENT CHAPTERS
Start a Chapter at Your Veterinary School

The Humane Society Veterinary Medical Association (HSVMA) is a new professional association affiliated with the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS), the country’s largest animal protection organization. HSVMA student chapters provide a forum for veterinary students to get involved in animal protection issues, promote humane veterinary education, and participate in field service opportunities.

Benefits of HSVMA Student Chapters …

- Each HSVMA Student Chapter will receive $500 in seed money.
- HSVMA maintains a speakers’ bureau that can provide presentations to the club on a variety of animal welfare topics.
- Annual Community Service Recognition Award to an HSVMA student member who makes a substantial contribution to humane veterinary training and/or community spay/neuter programs.
- Student members accepted to participate in an HSVMA Field Service (formerly known as RAVS) mobile teaching clinic can compete for scholarships to cover the deposit cost.
- Advice and assistance to any student chapter member seeking alternatives or changes to a more humane veterinary curriculum.
- Members will receive a newsletter on veterinary student issues relating to animal welfare.
- Housing fee waived for members doing internships at the Cape Wildlife Center.
- Scholarships to attend veterinary conferences and the Taking Action for Animals conference.
